NEW BUSINESS

STARS Program – Angie Holmes gave an overview of the STARS Program at Golisano Children’s Hospital. STARS – Special Needs Tracking and Awareness Response System. This program is from Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis, Missouri.

Golisano is the second area to implement this program. It is currently in Lee, Collier and Charlotte County. There are currently 145 patients enrolled. This program identifies children with varying medical diseases. A care plan is created for each of these children and this care plan is given to the EMS/1st responders to have some background information before arriving at the patient location. Once the person calling 911 identifies the child as a STARS patient, 911 sends the information to their cell phones/tablets.

They are currently going out to various fire departments and doing trainings on the equipment the responders may see in the field.

The process for getting into the program. A referral is given to Angie. Angie goes out to sign the family up. Once the family signs consent a care plan is created. The hospital records are reviewed, as well as the information the family gives to create this plan. The care plan is then reviewed by the Medical Director at Golisano and the Medical Director for EMS. The care plan goes live once everyone has signed off on it. Quality reviews are done on all cases to make sure the program is working.

The STARS program also has a disaster planning arm. This part of the program is still in the early stages.

The program started last April and has 145 enrolled patients with 108 live care plans. The remaining 37 are in various stages of approval. Now that they are working with the School District if a child has an emergency at school and 911 has to be called, the caller can identify the student as a STARS patient. Lee County is the first school district to work this program.

They currently have students in 18 of the Lee County schools. The schools are not allowed to share the names of students with the program; however, they can give the families the information about the program and the family can reach out to the program for enrollment.

The care plans have all the diagnoses, allergies and the baseline information on the child. It also has all medications and devices/equipment the child has.

Employee Wellness Update - Heather Parker demonstrated how to prepare a Cashew Cheese Dip (recipe attached). During the preparation she taught us several benefits for healthy cooking.

Leisha asked the group if they would be interested in having Heather do another healthy cooking presentation at the next SHAC meeting. It would take place after the business agenda is complete. The group thought that was a great idea!
